Federation Review Describes Harmony Movement.

IT STARTED IN WASHINGTON

Utterance of Secretary Root that "No State Can Live Unto Itself" and Heated Discussion at Conservation Congress Give Prominence to Question of Regulation.

The September number of the National Civic Federation Review is devoted to a description of the federation's movement in the interest of national unity, which grew out of the national conference the subject of "uniform legislation" held CALVARY CHURCH in Washington last January.

That conference was called for the purpose of developing the universality of the need for greater harmony between the States and a better co-ordination between the States and the Federal government on legislative matters; and to take practical steps to meet the situ-Special Services Held for Vacation Ends and Willie

The Review says in part:

"The prominence given the past few years to the question of national versus State regulation, beginning with the noted 'No State can live unto itself' utterance of Secretary Root before the Pennsylvania Society and continuing interruptedly to the recent heated discussion on ular emphasis at this time to the movement for national unity now being pro- preached the sermons. moted by the National Civic Federation. Favor Federal Control.

While, to the lay mind, there would seem to be an irreconcilable conflict between those who urge the centralization of power in the Federal government at Washington and those who would enlarge the powers of the States, yet when the arguments of the leaders of the two schools of thought are analyzed they generally amount to a declaration that each side favors the Federal control of those subjects which are interstate and the State control of those which are intrastate. Their disagreement relates to the disposition of those matters which Bryan has said belong in the 'twilight zone,' where the line of demarcation is indistinct

"In fact, when one reads the utterances of President Taft, Col. Roosevelt, Senator Root, Gov. Hughes, Gov. Blanchard, Aiton B. Parker. Samuel Gompers E. R. A. Seligman, and others-which will be found in this Review-it is easy to conclude that the vital point in this great question to-day is 'What, in the interest of public welfare, can be better controlled by the Federal government and what by the States?'

Question of Taxation.

When it comes to such question as taxation-especially the general property and personal tax-compensation for acci dents occurring to employes in the plants mines, and factories of the nation; reguulation of quasi-municipal utilities, regu lation of the thousands of State banks, savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, life and fire insurance, good roads building, child labor, prison made goods, arbitration and mediation in industrial disputes, and hundred of other subjects, the States alone, under Members of the Washington Saenger- Church, Anacostia, for two weeks. "All of which means, as is well stated by several writers in this issue of the Review, that unless the States are aroused to do their full duty there is aroused to do their full duty there is danger of this impatience resulting in an enlargement of Federal powers that will ultimately break down the central government."

Special music was a feature of each service. A plate collection was taken at each service for the church debt. This debt, which consisted of $20,000 when the church was built three years ago, has been reduced to about $9,000.

Rev. Dr. Tudor, who is one of the forenost pulpit orators in the South, held the attention of the congregation last night for forty-five minutes. He took as his subject the importance and value of the blessing of God.

The morning services concluded with sermon by Rev. Dr. Prettyman, whose text was, "See that thou make all things according to the pattern shown thee in the mounts." Dr. Prettyman based his remarks on the essential characteristics of the church. He explained that God's architecture cannot be improved upon, for the old church, he said, was but the emblem of the church of to-day. To-night a special musical programme, the feature of which will be the singing of Miss Elizabeth J. Leckie, has been arranged, and A. Lewin Kibler will give a lecture. Exercises will be held each evening during the session.
